OHIO RIVER SLOWLY FALLING AT CINCY

Cincinnati, Jan. 22.—The Ohio river reached a 65-foot stage here, at which point it was stationary for a time and then began to recede. All indications point to a continuance of the fall. By the end of the week it is thought the danger line will have passed on the way down, and some estimate of property losses will then be possible. At the present all that can be stated positively is the aggregate damage will run far into the hundreds of thousands of dollars, this being distributed along several hundred miles of the river and its tributaries. A cold weather, which largely aided in the ending of the high water, is the cause of much suffering among the thousands of homeless people whose homes were under water or were isolated by the rising waters. A work of rescue and relief went on all day, and few were left to suffer the greatest damage from this time will come from possible wrecking of buildings as the falling water pours over them.

Situation at Louisville.
Louisville, Ky., Jan. 22.—The worst was to be over in the flood situation at Louisville and vicinity. Unless there should be a sudden resumption in general rains in the upper Ohio river, according to the calculations of Weather Forecaster A. Z., will come to a stand today and then slowly decline. While the waters spread farther out over low portions of the city, there were no casualties. The damage to property, already heavy, was further augmented. Only one railroad has as yet annulled all its trains, the others keeping up a weak and laggard service.

Levee Gave Way.
Terre Haute, Ind., Jan. 22.—With a roar which could be heard for miles the Wabash river levee opposite the southern part of the city gave way. The water tore away 400 feet of the embankment and a torrent poured into Taylorville, a suburb on the west side of the river. Thousands of dollars' worth of property will be damaged and between 300 and 400 residents of Taylorville were forced to abandon their homes.

Driven From Homes.
Evansville, Ind., Jan. 22.—Under a clear sky the relief expedition out of this city, Newburg, Henderson, Owensboro and Rockport rescued more than 1,000 families from flooded homes. Evansville is housing more than 300 destitute people and supplying many of them with food. The river is 10.4 feet over the danger line.

Conesville Merchant to Open a Store Here
Richard Holdsworth, the well known merchant of Conesville, has purchased the property and store of George Wanamaker, at Chestnut and Sixteenth streets and will open possession Sunday morning. Mr. Holdsworth and his estimable family will move to this city and will only conduct a first class grocery here. The Wanamaker stand but will conduct a high class boarding house. He has been one of Conesville's successful merchants and will retain his store there, which will be managed by his son Albert, who will also move into his home there. Mr. Holdsworth has bought the Wanamaker property furniture and all, and therefore the Want column of The Age has advertised household goods, etc., of his Conesville home, for sale.

TERAALLY ACRES OF FISH LEFT HIGH AND DRY ON LAND
Thousands of fish were literally to be seen near New Philadelphia Sunday noon when the terrific wind and the canal levee at Beidler and the waters gush forth. The water ed with it a tremendous amount of fish and they were left wriggling and squirming high and dry as the water spread over the country. Such a raid for fish has never been seen and not a family for ten miles around but what has fish in storage to last them the rest of the month. Little damage was done beyond the break of the levee.

gh Officers in Coshocton
E. McCarty, general manager of the Pennsylvania lines west ofburg went through the city on 16 Tuesday morning, in his private car. A number of railroad men were with him.

Death of Babe South of Town
Bertha Jane Blackson, the ten-months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Blackson of Cassingham's mines, died at her home Monday. The funeral will be held at one thirty o'clock Wednesday afternoon and interment made in South Lawn cemetery.

TILLMAN USED HIS PITCHFORK

Brownsville Affair and Lynch Law Themes of South Carolina Statesman, Who Anticipates a Retreat on the Part of the President—Compromise Resolution Before Senate.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Galleries and floors of the senate were thronged when Senator Tillman was recognized to deliver a speech in reply to the recent criticism of himself by Senator Spooner. This speech began with a satirical picture of the senate as a minstrel show, which Mr. Tillman said later was his first and last attempt to be "funny," an attempt which, at its conclusion, brought denunciation from Senator Carmack in resentment of allusions to him. This was preceded by a serious reply from Senator Spooner on the attitude taken by Mr. Tillman on the race problem, all finally resulting in a session of nearly two hours behind closed doors. The secret session was followed by a brief open one, in which Mr. Tillman made an apology to Mr. Carmack and to all senators whom he had brought into his "first essay in the line of humor," and finally to the entire senate. Mr. Tillman then withdrew after he had said in his "funny essay," and said it would not appear in the Record.

In defining his position on the Brownsville affair Mr. Tillman said: "I knew that my attitude would please my constituents. It would have been easy for me to have kept quiet, but, believing as I do that a great wrong has been done the innocent negroes, and that the president had again exhibited a willingness to override law and usurp authority, I have in my feeble way tried to show why I joined his critics. Mr. Roosevelt has already rescinded one part of his order, and I warn my fellow senators on this side that they need not be surprised to find him a little later on modifying or changing his attitude in essential particulars on this question. I am prepared for anything he may do and shall be surprised at nothing, for since his somersault on the court review feature of the rate bill he will be only too glad to seize the first opportunity to placate the negro and resume his place as their idol."

"Now a word about lynching. Have I ever advocated lynching at any time or at any place? I answer, on my honor, never. I have justified it for one crime and one only, and I have maintained that attitude for the last 14 years. As governor of South Carolina, I proclaimed that, although I had taken the oath of office to support the law and enforce it, I would lead a mob to lynch any man, black or white, who had ravished any woman, black or white. This is my attitude, calmly and deliberately taken, and justified by my conscience in the sight of God."

"I do not know what the senator from Wisconsin would do under these circumstances; neither do I care. I have three daughters; so help me God, I had rather find either one of them killed by a tiger or by a bear and gather up her bones and bury them, conscious that she had died in the purity of her maidenhood, than have her crawl to me and tell me the horrid story that she had lost the jewel of her womanhood, or rather had been robbed of it, by a black fiend. What shall we do with a man who has outraged the brute and committed an act which is more cruel than death? Try him? Drag the victim in court, for she alone can furnish legal evidence, and make her testify to the fearful ordeal through which she has passed, undergoing a second crucifixion? That is what the senator from Wisconsin says to do, and he is welcome to all the honor he can get out of it. Our rule is to make the woman the witness, prosecutor, judge and jury."

Announcement was made in senate of a compromise resolution which brought Republican and Democratic senators together, on the basis of ordering an investigation of the facts of the affair without bringing into question the authority of the president to dismiss the negro troops. The resolution was submitted to and approved by the president at a conference Sunday. Senator Spooner offered the compromise resolution.

SULLIVAN PLAYS IMPORTANT PART

Coshocton Man Alternate---News of Convention

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 22.—Indianapolis was selected as the next meeting place of the convention of the United Mine Workers in January, 1908. Thirteen other cities were aspirants for the choice of the convention. Thomas Burke of Illinois and Patrick Gilday of Pennsylvania were elected delegates from the organization to the international congress, which will be held next summer in Salzburg, Austria. D. H. Sullivan of Ohio and Wellington O'Connor of Indiana were chosen alternates.

At the convention of the United Mine Workers of America in Indianapolis a resolution providing for a change in the constitution to give the national president an annual salary of $5000 and expenses, vice president $4000 and the editor of the Mine Workers' official paper $2000, was defeated. Vice President Lewis moved that it be turned down. President Mitchell now receives $3,000 a year, Vice President Lewis and Secretary-Treasurer Wilson $2500 each and the editor of the Mine Workers' Journal $1500.

A local from Pittsburgh, Pa., presented a resolution that caused much amusement among the delegates. It provided that all locals must be in good standing for a year before its representatives are entitled to seats in the national convention; that the latter be held on March 15 instead of January 15, and that the national officers be instructed to have all the miners organized by July 1, 1907, and that sub-national headquarters be established west of the Mississippi river. There were no votes in favor of the proposition.

A plan to amend the constitution so that the license fee for experienced miners shall be raised from $10 to $25, and that the fee for inexperienced miners shall be optional with the locals was defeated. The constitution was changed so that the tabulating of the vote on national officers will be done by the locals before the result is forwarded to national headquarters.

District Six Busy.

The Ohio miners asked for an amendment to the constitution regulating the election of check-weighmen at the mines. They recommended that check-weighmen be members of the miners' organization and shall have had one year's experience before being elected to the position and three days' notice of the date of the election shall be posted in a conspicuous place at the mines. The committee offered a substitute that the check-weighman shall have been employed at the mines six months, except where the local is newly organized. The committee provided that an officer of a local union might be elected check-weighman but that the check-weighman would not be considered an officer of the local. On motion of Vice President Lewis the matter was referred to the committee on constitution, which will carry out the will of the convention that the check-weighman shall not be recognized as an officer of the local.

BACKING TRAIN HIT WAGON AND SHOVED IT OFF TRACK

Dr. Barcroft had death staring him in the face Tuesday morning when a street car in which he was the sole occupant was hit by a freight on the Wheeling siding that crosses Seventh street.

Dr. Barcroft was returning from a call and was the sole passenger in one of Ingham's cars. As they drove across the track the freight suddenly shot forth, backing down on them. The driver whipped up but the horses could not get the car out of the way quick enough and the train hit the vehicle and shoved it off the track.

Wonderful to relate no damage was done—beside giving the physician a very keen and severe scare.

WEST LAFAYETTE MAN HAD FLOOD EXPERIENCE

West Lafayette, Jan. 22.—(Special)—Dr. Thomas lectured in Cincinnati Sunday for the Y. M. C. A. The lecture was to men only and his subject was "Be a Man." The doctor had quite an experience with the flood. When his train got within five miles of the city they were stopped because it was unsafe to proceed. They had been running for a mile through water and had to back until they could get onto another road. After being switched onto four different roads and covering a distance of twelve miles they got back onto the Panhandle road just two miles nearer the station, but were able to run in all right from that point. By Sunday evening he could not get near the station and the only road that could run a train out was the C. & N. Everybody had to leave the city on this road no matter which direction they wanted to go.

The doctor took a boat and went out onto the suspension bridge to see the flood which is between three and four miles wide at Cincinnati. While standing there he saw a house swept down and immense drift of all kinds.

KINGSTON NOW ASKS FOR AID

British Government Officials Disavow the Action of Swettenham, Who May Be Recalled—English War Secretary and Secretary Root Exchange Notes. Indignation in England and Jamaica.

New York, Jan. 22.—The mayor of Kingston, Jamaica, in his official capacity, appealed to the generosity of the American people on behalf of the earthquake sufferers. In a cablegram directed to Mayor George B. McClellan of this city, Mayor Tait of Kingston asked for money and building materials, which, he added, were urgently needed.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Dispatches exchanged between the British secretary of state for war and the state department, made public here, wholly ignoring the letters which passed between Admiral Davis and Governor Swettenham at Kingston, have had the effect of relieving the tension of feeling which had existed since it became known that Admiral Davis returned to Guantanamo from Kingston with his ships, which had gone to aid the stricken people of Jamaica. The message from London is interpreted here as meaning that the British government and people disavow the action of the governor of Jamaica in requesting Admiral Davis to disembark his men.

Secretary Root received the following from London: "Have read in newspapers what purports to be a letter from governor of Jamaica. Can only say that on materials before me, I entertain, as responsible for troops in island, feeling of deep gratitude to American admiral for generous assistance tendered at most critical time. Haldane, secretary of state for war, London." To this the following reply was sent: "The president greatly appreciates your cordial telegram and is glad of the proximity of this country that has made it possible to be of the slightest assistance to the stricken people of Jamaica in this crisis. If we can render any further aid whatever, the president earnestly hopes you will call on him without hesitation."

Mayor to Admiral Davis.
Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 22.—The indignation of the residents of Jamaica, both official and private citizens, at the action of Governor Swettenham in demanding the withdrawal by Admiral Davis of the relief forces, is spreading and intensifying. The governor's response to Admiral Davis' letter is bitterly denounced, and it is generally declared that the only possible reparation is for the government to apologize and recall Governor Swettenham. Mayor Tait, upon the departure of Admiral Davis, voiced the sentiments of citizens in a letter to the admiral, saying: "In behalf of the mayor, the council and all citizens of the stricken city, I desire to express deep regret that any unpleasantness should have occurred causing you to withdraw the valuable assistance generously rendered to this country and my unfortunate fellow citizens. Whatever has been the cause to induce you to decide to withdraw, we do not approve nor take part. We ask you not to withdraw and not to take offense at the conduct of one man."

Feeling at London.
London, Jan. 22.—The colonial office is still without explanation from Sir Alexander Swettenham, governor of Jamaica, of the situation which led to the withdrawal of Rear Admiral Davis' warships from Kingston on Saturday. The silence, although irritating to the government, is construed as a good sign that this much regretted affair is capable of amicable adjustment, and will not lead to any disturbance of the friendly relations between the United States and Great Britain. All the officials here are adopting a highly appreciative attitude toward the United States, and it can not be doubted that the incident will be settled, probably by the recall of Governor Swettenham, or at least the disavowal of his action and apology to Rear Admiral Davis.

Good Roads Organization Start The Ball Rolling

The deplorable condition of the roads of Coshocton county has aroused every farmer and every business man in the county, and the prospects of the county losing a number of its R. F. D. routes has awakened everyone to the seriousness of the case.

With this in mind a movement has been organized that the sterling men behind it declare will result in the rehabilitation of the roads and bridges of this county.

No Burden Either.
The inception is in the county Good Roads association and a committee from that association will soon be appointed to meet with a committee to be appointed from the Business Men's association, and the two committees will go before the county commissioners and petition them to have a referendum vote at the next general election on the question of bonding the county for $100,000 to be used in improving the roads and bridges of the county the bonds to run such a length of time that any increase in tax rate will be hardly appreciable.

All Want It.
Such a movement will find popular response from every quarter of the county. During flooded seasons—and with the sure but gradual disappearance of the forests the flood seasons are as certain as taxes—it is almost impossible to travel. R. F. D. routes have to be abandoned and all kinds of hardships are suffered. It is up to the county to act, and the idea of a referendum vote is a step in the right direction.

MRS. SHOL'S SUDDEN DEATH

James Hay received a telegram Tuesday morning bringing the sad news of the death of his sister Mrs. Lee Shohl of Cincinnati. Beyond saying that death came very suddenly no particulars were given. The remains will be brought to Coshocton for burial and the funeral services will probably be held Thursday at the home of Mr. Hay on Orange street.

Mrs. Shohl formerly lived in Coshocton and the news of her death will bring sorrow to her friends and relatives here.

ANDREW WIESNER TO MOVE WEST

Andrew Wiesner, who for the past several months has been successfully conducting a premium novelty plant here, expects to move his plant to Minneapolis, Minn., in a few weeks and to go there to engage in business on a larger scale. It is not thought he will remove permanently to that city at least for the present.

Bonded to Support His Own

W. M. Cochran of West was arrested Monday by Officer Jackson, charged with support of his daughter, who was years old. He was taken to the Coshocton jail.

LIEWERS RENT GRAY RESIDENCE

Messrs. Hippolyt and Charles Liewer, of the Coshocton Glass Co., have taken a lease on the George Gray property at the corner of Main and Park avenue, recently purchased by George Seaf. The property is one of the finest in the city and the gentlemen will use it as a residence.

Down Grade Helped Broken Engine on No. 3

Passenger train No. 3 was about 50 minutes late Monday evening on account of a broken valve. The accident occurred at Isleta but being down grade the engine was able to pull the train to this city where it was met by a freight engine from R. D. tower. Fireman Charles McCleary of this city was on the broken engine.

A LAZY LIVER

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as a savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with over-work. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver complaint," or torpid liver, by its wonderful control over the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleanses the system of poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

Symptoms. If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, dependent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," gnawing or distressing feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, bitter or sour "risings" in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, or biliousness, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more permanently than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time, and yet point to torpid liver, or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes and other indigestible food and take the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to its use until you are vigorous and strong.

Of Golden Seal root, which is one of the prominent ingredients of "Golden Medical Discovery," Dr. Roberts Bartholow, of Jefferson Medical College, says: "Very useful as a stomachic (stomach) tonic and in atonic dyspepsia. Cures gastric (stomach) catarrh and headaches accompanying same."

Dr. Grover Coe, of New York, says: "Hydrastis (Golden Seal root) exercises an especial influence over mucous surfaces. Upon the liver it acts with equal certainty and efficacy. As a cholagogue (liver irrigator) it has few equals." Dr. Coe also advises it for affections of the spleen and other abdominal viscera generally, and for scrofulous and glandular diseases, cutaneous eruptions, indigestion, debility, chronic diarrhea, constipation, also in several affections peculiar to women, and in all chronic derangements of the liver, also for chronic inflammation of bladder, for which Dr. Coe says "it is one of the most reliable agents of cure."

Prof. John King, M. D., late of Cincinnati, author of the AMERICAN DIETETIC, gives it a prominent place among medicinal agents, reiterates all the foregoing writers have said about it, as does also Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati. Dr. Scudder says: "It stimulates the digestive processes and increases the assimilation of food. By these means the blood is enriched.  the consequent improvement on the glandular and nervous systems are natural results." Dr. Scudder further says, "in relation to its general effect upon the system, there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic, useful in all debilitated states."

Don't accept a substitute of unknown composition for this non-secret MEDICINE OF KNOWN COMPOSITION.

THE GRANGE PICNIC

Three Sources of Profit to Be Derived From These Summer Outings.

The grange picnic has come to occupy an important place in the grange calendar, says State Master Fuller of New York, and that we may get the full benefit from this annual event it will be well for us to remember that we may reasonably expect three sources of profit from a picnic—first, the personal benefit that comes from relaxation and rest from our strenuous farm life; second, the educational and instructive benefit of the addresses and lectures, and, third, the stimulating effect to the Order from interesting others in the work of the grange. In order to get the first mentioned benefit from a picnic we must throw off for a day all the care and worry about our business and come to the picnic with a determination to have a good time. To this end it is a good idea to forget forever any little personal dislike we may have for any other members of the grange and get right up close to them, and as if we cannot discover common ground with them, let us discover it.

pose and made to feel that he is welcome and that you are glad he is there. He will give you a better address under such circumstances than he will if he is left to browse around the woods until time to make his speech and then have to talk against a baseball game, a merry-go-round and a red lemonade stand. All these things are proper adjuncts to a picnic, but do not mix well together. The third and last benefit to be expected from the picnic, the attraction of those outside the gates to join the grange, is certainly worth catering to. Take some trouble to invite those whom you think would make good members of your grange to attend the picnic, and when they get there see that they have a good time. Think about these things when you are arranging your picnic and see if they do not add to the enjoyment and benefit of your annual outing.

Hence the Years.

THE Masquerader

By KATHERINE CECIL THURSTON,
Author of "The Circle," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, 1906, by Harper & Brothers.

As the press about the doorway melted to give her passage the red haired man in front of Loder was the first to take advantage of the space. "Jove, Lillian," he said, moving forward, "you look as if you expected Chilcote to be somebody else, and are disappointed to find he's only himself!" He laughed delightedly at his own joke.

The words were exactly the tonic Lillian needed. She smiled her usual undisturbed smile as she turned her eyes upon him.

"My dear Leonard, you're using your eyes. When that happens you're never responsible for what you see." Her words came more slowly and with a touch of languid amusement. Her composure was suddenly restored.

Then for the first time Loder changed his position. Moved by an impulse he made no effort to dismount, he stepped back to Eve's side and slipped his arm through hers—successfully concealing his left hand.

The warmth of her skin through her long glove thrilled him unexpectedly. His impulse had been one of self defense, but the result was of a different character. At the quick contact the wish to fight for—to hold and defend—the position that had grown so dear woke in renewed force. With a new determination he turned again toward Lillian.

"I caught the same impression—without an eyeglass," he said. "Why did you look like that?" He asked the question steadily and with apparent carelessness, though through it all his reason stood agape—his common sense cried aloud that it was impossible for the eyes that had seen his face in admiration, in love, in contempt, to fall now in recognition. The air seemed breathless while he spoke and waited. His impression of Lillian was a mere shimmering of gold dress and gold hair, all that he was really conscious of was the pressure of his hand on Eve's arm and the warmth

"Do you see what I mean, Eve?" of her skin through the soft glove. Then abruptly the mist lifted. He saw Lillian's eyes—indifferent, amused, slightly contemptuous, and a second later he heard her voice. "My dear Jack," she said sweetly, "how absurd of you! It was simply the contrast of your eyes peering over Leonard's hair. It was like a gorgeous sunset with a black cloud overhead." She laughed. "Do you see what I mean, Eve?" She affected to see Eve for the first time.

Eve had been looking calmly ahead. She turned now and smiled serenely. Loder felt no vibration of the arm he held, yet by an instant intuition he knew that the two women were antagonistic. He experienced it with the divination that follows upon a moment of acute suspense. He understood it, as he had understood Lillian's look of recognition when his forehead, eyes and nose had shown him to be himself, her blank surprise when his close shaven lip and chin had proclaimed him Chilcote.

He felt like a man who has looked into an abyss and stepped back from the edge, outwardly calm, but mentally shaken. The commonplace of life seemed for the moment to hold deeper meanings. He did not hear Eve's answer; he paid no heed to Lillian's next remark. He saw her smile and turn to the red haired man; finally he saw her move on into the upper room, followed by her little court. Then he pressed the arm he was still holding. He felt an urgent need of companionship, of a human expression to the crisis he had passed.

"Shall we get out of this?" he asked again.
Eve looked up. "Out of the room?" she said.
He looked down at her, compelling her gaze. "Out of the room—and the house," he answered. "Let us go home."

CHAPTER XVII.

carriage, seemed to Loder to be marvellously simple proceedings. Then, as he sat by Eve's side and again felt the forward movement of the horses, he had leisure for the first time to wonder whether the time that had passed since he occupied that position had actually been lived through.

Only that night he had unconsciously compared one incident in his life to a sketch in which the lights and shadows have been obliterated and lost. Now that picture rose before him, startlingly and incredibly intact. He saw the sunlit houses of Santasalar, backgrounded by the sunlit hills—saw them as plainly as when he himself had sketched them on his memory. Every detail of the scene remained the same, even to the central figure; only the eye and the hand of the artist had changed.

At this point Eve broke in upon his thoughts. Her first words were curiously coincidental.

"What did you think of Lillian As-trupp tonight?" she asked. "Wasn't her gown perfect?"

Loder lifted his head with an almost guilty start. Then he answered straight from his thoughts.

"I didn't notice it," he said, "but her eyes reminded me of a cat's eyes—and she walks like a cat. I never seemed to see it—until tonight."

Eve changed her position. "She was very artistic," she said tentatively. "Don't you think the gold gown was beautiful with her pale colored hair?"

Loder felt surprised. He was convinced that Eve disliked the other, and he was not sufficiently versed in women to understand her praise. "I thought," he began. Then he wisely stopped. "I didn't see the gown," he substituted.

Eve looked out of the window. "How unappreciative men are!" she said. But her tone was strangely free from censure.

After this there was silence until Grosvenor square was reached. Having left the carriage and passed into the house, Eve paused for a moment at the foot of the stairs to give an order to Crapham, who was still in attendance in the hall, and again Loder had an opportunity of studying her. As he looked a sharp comparison rose to his mind.

"A fairy princess!" he had heard the red haired man say as Lillian As-trupp came into view along the Bramfells' corridor, and the simile had seemed particularly apt. With her grace, her delicacy, her subtle attraction, she might well be the outcome of imagination. But with Eve it was different. She also was graceful and attractive, but it was grace and attraction of a different order. One was beautiful with the beauty of the white rose that springs from the hothouse and withers at the first touch of cold; the other with the beauty of the wild rose on the cliffs above the sea, that keeps its petals fine and transparent in face of salt spray and wet mist. Eve, too, had her realm, but it was the realm of real things. A great confidence, a feeling that here one might rely even if all other faiths were shaken, touched him suddenly. For a moment he stood irresolute, watching her mount the stairs with her easy, assured step. Then a determination came to him. Fate favored him tonight; he was in luck tonight. He would put his fortune to one more test. He swung across the hall and ran up the stairs.

His face was keen with interest as he reached her side. The hard outline of his features and the hard grayness of his eyes were softened as when he had paused to talk with Lakey. Action was the breath of his life, and his face changed under it as another's might change under the influence of stirring music or good wine.

Eve saw the look and again the uneasy expression of surprise crossed her eyes. She paused, her hand resting on the banister.

Loder looked at her directly. "Will you come into the study as you came that other night? There's something I want to say." He spoke quietly. He felt master of himself and her.

She hesitated, glanced at him and then glanced away.

"Will you come?" he said again. And as he said it his eyes rested on the sweep of her thick eyelashes, the curve of the back hair.

At last her lashes lifted and the perplexity and doubt in her blue eyes stirred him. Without waiting for her answer, he leaned forward.

"Say yes," he urged. "I don't often ask for favors."

Still she hesitated. Then her decision was made for her. With a new boldness he touched her arm, drawing her forward gently but decisively toward Chilcote's rooms.

In the study a fire burned brightly, the desk was laden with papers, the lights were nicely adjusted, even the chairs were in their accustomed places. Loder's senses responded to each suggestion. It seemed but a day since he had seen it last. It was precisely as he had left it—the niche needing but the man.

word "man," and from every contingency in that close-out conqueror. He bent over the chair as he pulled it forward to hide the expression in his eyes.

"Sit down," he said gently. Eve moved toward him. She moved slowly, as if half afraid. Many emotions stirred her—distrust, uncertainty and a curious half dominant, half suppressed questioning that it was difficult to define. Loder remembered her shrinking coldness, her reluctant tolerance on the night of his first coming, and his individuality, his certainty of power, kindled afresh. Never had he been so vehemently himself; never had Chilcote seemed so complete a shadow.

As Eve seated herself he moved forward and leaned over the back of his chair. The impulse that had filled him in his interview with Renwick, that had goaded him as he drove to the reception, was dominant again.

"I tried to say something as we drove to the Bramfells' tonight," he began. Like many men who possess eloquence for an impersonal cause, he was brusque, even blunt, in the stating of his own case. "May I hark back, and go on from where I broke off?"

Eve half turned. Her face was still puzzled and questioning. "Of course." She sat forward again, clasping her hands.

He looked thoughtfully at the back of her head, at the slim outline of her shoulders, the glitter of the diamonds about her neck.

"Do you remember the day, three weeks ago, that we talked together in this room—the day a great many things seemed possible?"

This time she did not look round. She kept her gaze upon the fire.

"Do you remember?" he persisted quietly. In his college days men who heard that tone of quiet persistence had been wont to lose heart. Eve heard it now for the first time and, without being aware, answered to it.

"Yes, I remember," she said.

"On that day you believed in me." In his earnestness he no longer simulated Chilcote; he spoke with his own steady reliance. He saw Eve stir, unclasp and clasp her hands, but he went steadily on. "On that day you saw me in a new light. You acknowledged me." He emphasized the slight peculiar word. "But since that day—his voice quickened—"since that day your feelings have changed, your faith in me has fallen away." He watched her closely, but she made no sign, save to lean still nearer to the fire. He crossed his arms over the back of her chair. "You were justified," he said suddenly. "I've not been—myself—since that day." As he said the words his coolness forsook him slightly. He loathed the necessary lie, yet his egotism clamored for vindication. "All men have their lapses," he went on. "There are times—there are days and weeks when I—when my—The word 'nerves' touched his tongue, hung upon it, then died away unspoken.

Very quietly, almost without a sound, Eve had risen and turned toward him. She was standing very straight, her face a little pale, the hand that rested on the arm of her chair trembling slightly.

"John," she said quickly, "don't say that word! Don't say that hideous word 'nerves'! I don't feel that I can bear it tonight—not just tonight. Can you understand?"

Loder stepped back. Without comprehending, he felt suddenly and strangely at a loss. Something in her face struck him silent and perplexed. It seemed that without preparation he had stepped upon dangerous ground. With an undefined apprehension, he waited, looking at her.

"I can't explain it," she went on with nervous haste. "I can't give any reasons, but quite suddenly the—farce has grown unbearable. I used not to think—used not even to care—but suddenly things have changed—or I have changed." She paused, confused and distressed. "Why should it be? Why should things change?" She asked the question sharply, as if in appeal against her own incredulity.

Loder turned aside. He was afraid of the triumph, volcanic and irrepressible, that her admission roused.

"Why?" she said again.

He turned slowly back. "You forget that I'm not a magician," he said gently. "I hardly know what you are speaking of."

For a moment she was silent, but in that moment her eyes spoke. Pain, distress, pride, all strove for expression; then at last her lips parted.

"Do you say that in seriousness?" she asked.

It was no moment for feinting, and Loder knew it. "In seriousness," he replied shortly.

"Then I shall speak seriously too." Her voice shook slightly and the color came back into her face, but the hand on the arm of the chair ceased to tremble. "For more than four years I have known that you take drugs—for more than four years I have acquiesced in your deceptions, in your mean-nesses."

There was an instant's silence. Then Loder stepped forward.

"You knew—for four years?" he said, very slowly. For the first time that night he remembered Chilcote and forgot himself.

Eve lifted her head with a quick gesture, as if, in slinging off discretion and silence, she appreciated to the full the new relief of speech.

BAD EXAMPLE COUNTS IN THE DIVINE TALLY

Dr. Fisher Preaches Sterling Sermon at M.P. Revival.

Dr. Stokely Fisher preached a powerful sermon Sunday at the M. P. church on "The Law of Love."

His text was: Rom. XIII:10—"Love worketh no ill to his neighbor, therefore love is the fulfilling of the law."

"We are accustomed to speak of Paul as the apostle of faith, of Peter as the apostle of hope, and of John as the apostle of love; but the text, and the 13th chapter of the first letter to the church at Corinth, were written by Paul. No other man has so clearly shown the superiority of love over all other graces. It is his purpose to make the commandments to which he refers (Rom. XIII:9) which are negative as stated positive. So he announces the law of love.

"We learn from the text that it is the purpose of God's law to promote the welfare of his creatures. This is the object of every just law. God does not lay down many rules of conduct. He gives us great fundamental principles of universal application. He would have his children act from right motives. When Christ was asked 'Which is the greatest commandment' he condensed both tables of the old law into a sentence. 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and thy neighbor as thyself.' God must be obeyed because he is adored; there is no other worship; the rights of others must be secured to them by love; there is no other service.

The purpose of the divine law is fulfilled by love. The relation which the individual sustains to society implies obligation to seek the welfare of others. He must do no harm. He must do good. These duties are emphasized by the text.

"Love worketh no ill to his neighbor." This is a very broad truth. Christ teaches us that our neighbor is anyone we may help. He who has need has a claim upon us. The shield of God is over the weak, the sword of the almighty defends him. The spirit of the divine law enters into every relation of life with its imperative prohibition of everything that can injure even the feeblest.

It strikes, impartially, every foe of human happiness or well-being. It would regulate business, purify society, restore Eden. It is an incarnate conscience to condemn the man who would rob youth of its virgin innocence and joy. It gives appalling solemnity to the words of the prophet: "Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink." It condemns the gambler, the drunkard, the cheat, the libertine. But its fearful denunciations rest no less upon the hypocrite, the slanderer, etc.

The terrible reality of the great white throne of judgment is lifted before the eyes of every evil doer. The law of love condemns every form of bad example. The man who desecrates the holy Sabbath, who pollutes the street corners with foul jests, who dishonors the image of God in himself by disregard of sacred obligations to his fellowmen is an enemy to his neighbor, his country and his race.

But this law appeals to a higher class—those who are not positively wicked. Even good sought selfishly becomes evil. There is no religion without morality, but there may be morality that is unchristian, since it may have reference only to self. Christ has no secret disciples. The man who claims to be religious, and at the same time evades all duties imposed by the word of God—remains outside the church, makes no sacrifice, assumes no obligations, renders no service—this man betrays the cause he pretends to love. We owe our neighbor the inspiration of a good example. By developing the spiritual life until you are changed into the image of the perfect man you render the best service possible to the world.

But it is the purpose of God to promote the welfare of the world. It is clearly implied that obedience to the law of love will work positive and practical good. "If any man sees his brother hath need and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?" If we love not our brother whom we have seen, how can we love God whom we have not seen? Love does not only withhold the hand from evil, it prompts it to do good. To fail to do right is sinful as to do wrong.

Bramble

Press your finger down on the back of your hand, like a needle, and see how long the whistling remains. If it does not disappear in two seconds, the cause of your ache (brain-ache) is proven acid.

In this trouble uric acid does act in the same way as in most uric acid diseases. The uric grains are so fine that the blood keeps them in suspension, and the blood thick with the impurity. Every pulsation the heart forces the blood stream through the farthest tiniest veins of the body. But the blood is thick with uric acid and cannot pass through these tiny veins. The heart then pounds away with its might trying to force the blood through, and the result is high blood pressure in the big arteries that lead to the brain, and the very sensitive brain-walls are overstrained. This uric acid condition also causes Bright's Disease, diabetes, dropsy, etc.

It is dangerous to relieve brain-ache with sedatives, they only weaken the heart's action. The heart should NEVER be interfered with. You must clear the blood of uric acid so that it can flow freely without overworking the heart. LIFE PLANT has the power, given it by Nature, to dissolve and thoroughly clean out the excess of uric acid in the blood. Every day you take LIFE PLANT your brain-ache will grow less and less until it goes away altogether; your blood is made clear and strong, and your heart pumps away like a fine, powerful machine. Don't wait for the next attack. Begin taking LIFE PLANT NOW.

POLO THE WINTER SPORT.
For a generation or two that part of modern civilization which finds inter sport. Ice-boating is confined imperative to have amusement all the time has sought in vain for a sport to the north and spacious lakes or rivers. Skating is too intermittent in this climate. Indoor baseball has never "caught on." But at last the panacea seems to have been found in polo. Coshocton is not alone in her enthusiasm over the game.
The cities and towns of this section of the state are wild over the sport. It is a good clean wholesome game that all grow fond of as they become acquainted with its points. It is a healthful sport and exciting to watch. Coshocton glories in the remarkable success her team has attained. It is making a good cold weather substitute for baseball.

The Cat's Paw
In defense of his vicious assault upon the integrity and character of Hon. James Glenn, and the latter's method of conducting the office of prosecuting attorney, the self-hallowed editor of the Democratic daily has usurped a pretended high plane of non-political purity.
He poses, in his defense-editorial, as the scourger of the temple,
—as a high minded priest of purity in public affairs. He has gone squarely on record to that effect.
Yet, on Saturday, Jan. 19, that editor was cornered in the court house, and the question put to him fairly and squarely, why he had made such a bitter and unwarranted attack on former Prosecutor Glenn.
"IT WAS PUT UP TO ME AND I WAS FORCED TO DO IT",
was his reply.

PENALTY OF CIVILIZATION
Why such floods? Have you stopped to realize that the devastation the forest land up the Walhonding and Tuscarawas valleys is RE-Sponsible for the high water?
In the olden days when the hillsides were covered with verdure and the trees had been unscathed by the ax the spring freshets were modest and seldom rose to the awful heights of the last 20 years. Each year seems worse. It is the penalty of civilization is paying to nature. The effort to save the forests has no more forceful or eloquent appeal than this.

SLOT MACHINES
ON THE RUN
The slot machines which have been doing such a big business in some of the stores of the city during the past 10 days, will have to go.
When the manager of the Acme Gum permission of Mayor Smith to place the machines, he was refused. He was allowed to place the machines at his own risk, and if any complaint was made he promised to take them away at once. Mayor Smith wrote him regarding the machines Monday,

and the manager will be here soon
and remove the machines.

Everything was found to be in a flourishing condition and the business prospects for the coming year are very bright.

Just
On The Side

"The heavy rain of the past few days has answered one question to my satisfaction," said a Main street business man to The Age yesterday.
"And that is the cleaning of the paved streets. Never have the streets been so clean. Why not regularly, say one night a week, take the fire hose and wash off the streets.
We have plenty of water and that would relieve the purchase of expensive equipment. There is a natural surface drainage to the river and Coshocton's paved streets could be made as clean as a parlor floor if we would take the advantages that we possess. Wash the streets with water. Might try it anyhow as it costs nothing."

One of the grandest views imaginable is to go up the railroad tracks and climb Jim Moore's hill and gaze outward over the vast lake that has taken its abode in the Tuscarawas and Walhonding valleys. It is a remarkable scene with the water at flood stage and several people have taken advantage of the occasion.

To All Pile Sufferers We Will Send Free a Trial Package of the Pyramid Pile Cure
In order to prove to you that our remedy is not to be classed with the many concoctions advertised as cures for this dread disease, we make this liberal offer.
We leave it to your own judgment
to decide whether or not you can afford to do without this long tried remedy. We know of no case where the Pyramid Pile Cure has not brought relief, when it has been used according to directions. It has saved thousands from the operating table and endless torture. You owe it to yourself to give it a fair trial especially since it costs you nothing.
I write to thank you and also praise you for the good your medicine has done for me. Oh, I can't find words to express my thanks to you all for such a wonderful and speedy cure. I felt relieved after using your sample, so I sent right on to a druggist and bought a 50c box which I believe has cured me entirely.
I feel more myself now than I have felt in over a year, for I have been coughed about that long with the piles. I have told all my friends about this wonderful discovery and will recommend it whenever I can.
You can use my name anywhere you choose. Respectfully, Mrs. Chas. I.
Coleman, Tullahoma, Tenn.
There is surely no good reason why any sufferer from piles should continue in agony. If you are tortured with this disease, we will send to your address in a plain sealed wrapper a sufficient quantity of the Pyramid Pile Cure to show what relief it brings.
Many have been practically cured by this amount of the remedy alone.
The sample package which we will send you contains the identical remedy sold in all drug stores at 50 cents per box. Write to-day and prove to your own satisfaction that you can be cured. Pyramid Drug Co., 77

Experienced at Kingston in Inducing Negroes to Work.
Kingston, Jan. 22.—The conditions
in Kingston are improving slowly.
All passes to the burned sections where there is nothing to loot were revoked, and this step has caused much inconvenience to Americans and others who desire to reach ships in the harbor. Many bodies are still being recovered and cremated, and it is believed the fatalities will reach a total of 700. The United States refrigerator ship Celtic arrived here. She received orders not to delay her departure, and sailed at once. There are still frequent tremors of the earth.
A quake of especial severity occurred at 3 o'clock Monday morning, and did little damage. Difficulty is experienced in inducing the negroes to work, on account of the prevalence of a conviction among them that this was a "white man's earthquake," and that it would be dangerous for colored people to interfere with an act of God.

Croup can positively stopped in 20

INTENSE COLD
Envelops Eastern Europe Even as Far
South as Greece.
London, Jan. 22.—Intense cold prevails over eastern Europe even as far south as Greece. In Russia the weather is most severe. In St. Petersburg the thermometer registers 20 degrees (Fahrenheit) below zero, and in the province of Yaroslavl 50 degrees below. The peasants are literally living on top of their spacious stoves, and day and night enormous braziers are kept burning on the streets of St. Petersburg and hot tea is dispensed through the night by order of the government. Troops are patrolling the streets to rescue frozen cab drivers and others. Austro-Hungary also reports very low temperatures. Such extreme cold has not been experienced in 10 years. A number of people have been frozen to death or injured by frost-bites. A violent blizzard prevails at Constantinople, and it is very cold there. All streetcar traffic has been suspended. Athens presents the unique spectacle of being covered with snow. The cold wave also extends generally over Germany.

DAYS OF DIZZINESS

Ohio, says: "My first experience with kidney trouble took place a long while ago. I could hardly move for the terrible pains in my back and kidneys seemed to take the very life and vitality out of me. The kidney secretions were very profuse, causing me to get up several times during the night, were highly colored and contained sediment. I had dizzy spells and in fact, was completely run down with the disease. I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills from Siegrist & Williams' drug store and before I had used half of them I was feeling much better and a continuation cured me. I have had no sign of kidney trouble since."

The Calendar. Today — The Quiet Stitches meet with Mrs. Joe Wisenburt. The Eastern Star meets in the Masonic hall. The Holloway Misseloh band meets with Miss Mary Ricketts. Dance at Forbes hall. Tomorrow — The Roseco Women's club meets with Miss Nell Henderson. Miss Kelley, state organizer of the L. C. B. A. wishes to meet all the ladies of Sacred Heart church at the Park hotel in the evening.

A Beautiful Ring. One of the most beautiful pieces of jewelry owned in this country is the ring worn by Kathryn Osterman in one of the acts of "The Girl That Looks Like Me". This resplendent circlet is of gold bearing a letter "E" an inch and a quarter long, studded with twenty-three diamonds, and is valued at $1500. The ring was built after Miss Osterman's own ideas at Tiffany's in New York and has created no end of comment among many in the fashionable set.

For Miss Baughman. Miss Amelia Baughman who is here from Roswell, N. M., was the guest of honor at a very enjoyable card party given Monday evening by Lee Hebling at the McManus home on Chestnut street the others present being Mrs. Prosper Royer, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Brice, Miss Mary Harvey, Miss Frances Weaver, Miss Carrie Lembricht, Miss Margaret O'Haron, Charles Dale, Frank Klice, Charles Weaver, M. J. Dwyer and Ed. Wimmer. Mrs. Brice and Mrs. Royer had the same good luck at pedro—the game played—but the handsome china plate which was the prize went to Mrs. Royer on a cut. Delicious refreshments were served.

Entertained at Dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Cooper entertained the following friends at six o'clock dinner Monday evening at their home on Elm street: Mr. and Mrs. William Schwartz, Miss Emma Schwartz, Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Pinnock, Mr. Karr of Colorado and B. W. Jackson. After dinner several games of cards were enjoyed.

Dance at Forbes Hall. The Imperial orchestra will furnish the music for the dance at Forbes hall tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Denzer Surprised. Mr. and Mrs. George Denzer of Lee avenue were happily surprised Monday evening by a company of friends who arrived to spend a few hours with them in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. They all were masked which added much jollity to the gathering. Refreshments were served during the evening and those who enjoyed it all were Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Denzer and son Willie, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Harris, Mrs. John Weatherwax, Mrs. W. T. Knight, Mrs. Harrison Courtwright, Mrs. Beall, Mrs. John Baughman, Mrs. Waasm and son Albert, Mrs. Chas. Denzer and children, Mrs. John Robinson, Mrs. Fred Horn, Mrs. Leffler, Mrs. Howard Robinson, Mrs. Ben Paterson, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Fielding Magness, Mrs. Frank Lightell, Mrs. E. A. Carnahan, Miss Ella Lennon and Miss Minnie Harris.

The Chautauqua Circle. The Chautauqua Circle held its regular meeting with Miss Lucy Beach Monday evening and furthered its knowledge of English history by means of two excellent papers. The first one was by Mrs. Clifford Beach who had been assigned the subject of "Picturesque England" and wrote particularly of Cumberland and Westmorland and the homes of Tennyson and Wordsworth. Miss Mabel Hamilton discussed "English Artists" mentioning specially John Jacob Watts whose ambition it is to raise English art to the same high plane which the literature of the country occupies; Watts excels in portrait painting. Miss Hamilton also mentioned Baron Leighton with his wonderful gift for depicting faces of women and bringing out their innate purity and Burne-Jones whose pictures have been and are still the glory of many a gallery. After the program refreshments were served and the circle adjourned to meet next with Miss Adda Merrell.

beat attended of the year and the papers given were of the same excellence and thoroughness which has characterized the work all through the year. The first one was by Mrs. Cantwell and treated of the difficulties encountered by the houses of York and Lancaster and the interesting history it made; Mrs. A. N. Compton followed with a pen picture of Wycliff and the Lollards, after which all the ladies read and laughed heartily over a series of jokes which had been distributed for their edification and amusement. And then Mrs. St. Clair who was one of the hostesses of the afternoon made a little speech speaking of the latent talent along literary and artistic lines which she was confident the ladies possessed and which she and her "confederates" proposed to bring out. Accordingly envelopes were distributed and in each one was a card with an initial on it, some chewing gum, and beads, yarn, tooth picks etc., which were to be used along with the gum in the making of animal the variety of animal to be decided upon by the initial, which adorned each card. For a time the ladies chewed meditatively and then they went to work the result of their labors being a small cavalcade of beasts and birds the like of which has never been seen since Noah left his wonderful company into the ark; and when the animal was made it was described in original verse the collection being afterwards read aloud to the great delight of all present with the exception of the authoresses as their own individual turns came.

Next, supper was served, a most delicious one the hostesses Mrs. Townsend, Mrs. J. A. Compton, Mrs. W. J. Adams, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Agnew and Mrs. St. Clair being assisted by Miss Jones the whole coterie of waitresses being gowned in green crepe paper caps and aprons to carry out the idea of the club colors which combine green and white. The gathering was happily planned in all its details and will always be remembered with pleasure by all who attended it.

District Meeting. District one of the Presbyterian church had its fortnightly meeting Monday evening with Mrs. Overholt at her home on Vine street. The ladies sewed carpet rags, and quite a pile accumulated to their credit. The next meeting will be held February 4 with Mrs. Kuntz.

Entertained at Dinner. William Himebaugh entertained the following friends at dinner Saturday evening in honor of his fourteenth birthday: Hearn Crowthers, George Loos, Ray Loos, Paul Shrigley, Hurly Ralston, David Markley, Carl Miller and Perl Tracc.

The Wranglers. John Moist presented a well prepared paper on "Emigration" before the Wranglers Monday evening. It was illustrated with charts illustrating the points brought out and was listened to with the closest attention. The next meeting will be Feb. 4 when Judge Nicholas will talk on "Kipling".

Water Still Over Road. The water is falling slowly but it will be tomorrow at the very earliest before the road between the bridges is passable and longer than that before the Lewisville road is free from water.

The New Century Club. The members of the New Century club learned much about the system of feudalism and the manners of chivalry thanks to the delightful papers presented by Miss Agnes Crawford and Mrs. Edson Wilson at Miss Rue's home on Monday evening. Miss Crawford had the former subject and discussed the feudal laws, the inter-dependence of lord and retainer and the various other factors which went to make up a system most important in the life of Europe. Mrs. Wilson wrote of Chivalry, a word which stands for all that is picturesque and much that is both good and beautiful be-

MEN ARE POWERLESS To Fight Against Women's Union. They Strike at the Underlying Cause. To treat Dandruff and Falling Hair, with Irritants or oils on which a parasitic germ will prosper, is like scooping water from the ocean to prevent the tide from rising. You cannot accomplish a satisfactory cure without having a right understanding of the fundamental causes of the trouble. You must kill the Dandruff Germ. Newbro's Herpicide does this because it is specially made to do that very thing. When the germ is removed, the hair has no choice but to resume healthy growth and beauty. Destroy the cause, you remove the effect. Newbro's Herpicide is sold by all druggists and is the only remedy that cures dandruff and falling hair.

COXEY DEAL GOT OUT OF JAIL

"Coxey" Deal escaped from the county jail Monday morning. Humane Officer Jackson went to the jail quite early to get "Coxey" to take him to the Boys' Industrial home at Lancaster. "Coxey" was eating breakfast, it is said. While the humane officer was being admitted at the front door "Coxey" slipped out the side door and sped down Chestnut street to his home on Second street. Had he not gone home he might have eluded the officers. Both Sheriff Browning and Officer Jackson hastened down after him. The sheriff went to the front door and the humane officer to the back door. "Coxey" tried to escape again by way of the back door but ran into Officer Jackson's arms. He was taken to the train and is now at Lancaster where he will remain until he is eighteen years old unless his conduct warrants his release.

inning with the years which limited the reign of Charlemagne and on down through the rule of Charles of Burgundy; she spoke of the devotion of the knights to church and state and lady fair and mentioned the steps by which the boy progressed from page to knight. Mrs. Wilson also read with true dramatic insight the quarrel between Brutus and Cassius in Julius Caesar.

The responses to roll call were especially entertaining being a list of what the members are going to do in that magical day "when I have time." Later in the evening refreshments were served and while they were being enjoyed plans were made for a "picnic" which is to be given next Monday afternoon and evening at the home of Mrs. William Merrell on Main street.

PERSONALS

Albinas Underwood, formerly an insurance agent of this city but now employed by the Pennsylvania Co., returned to this city Monday evening. George Gray is in Utica on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Hill and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ross of Uhrichsville spent Sunday at the home of A. J. Hill. Mrs. Ross has remained for a longer visit.

Dr. E. E. Marquand of Conesville is in town today.

Carl Duncan of Killbuck is a guest of his cousin A. L. Stevenson.

Work of Storm at Buffalo. Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 22.—The hurricane which swept the Niagara frontier has subsided, and a more extended examination of damage to shipping lowers the original estimate. At the port of Buffalo alone, however, it will be about $1,000,000. The high waters of Lake Erie receded, leaving some of the stranded lake liners high and dry on the sandy beach. None of them appears to be seriously damaged, but the expense of getting them afloat will be very heavy. The death list totals four. Three persons were killed in the collapse of buildings and another was drowned. The United States government sustains a loss of from $100,000 to $200,000 from destruction of breakwaters.

Men Tagged and Deported. Logansport, Ind., Jan. 22.—Fifty animal trainers and other circus employees of the Hagenbeck shows, who were released on arrival in Peru, where the show consolidated with another circus, were shipped to Logansport by the Peru police. The men were promptly arrested and deported. Each man was given a printed tag reading: "Returned with thanks; not available. City of Logansport."

Bailey Case. Austin, Tex., Jan. 22.—The house refused to take favorable action on a resolution offered by the opponents of Senator Bailey seeking to postpone the election of United States senator. The senate and house investigating committees have considered a joint session the investigation problem, and finally decided that they would grant Representative Coxey, the complainant, who has filed charges in the case, an attorney to prosecute Senator Bailey, while they will allow the latter three attorneys.

Away. I cannot say, and I will not say That he is dead—he is just away. With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand, He has wandered into an unknown land And left us dreaming how very fair It needs must be, since he lingers there. And you—O you, who the longest year For the old time step and the glad return— Think of him faring on, as dear In the love of There as the love of Here, And loyal still, as he gave the blows Of his warrior strength to his country's foes.

Mild and gentle as he was brave, When the sweetest love of his life he gave To simple things—where the violets grew, Pure as the eyes they were likened to. The touches of his hand have strayed As reverently as his lips have prayed; When the little town thrills that harshly child— Was dear to him as the mocking bird, And he pined as much as a man in pain A writhing honeybee wet with rain. Think of him still as the same, I say. He is not dead—he is just away. —James Whitcomb Riley. Paper Which Falls to Pieces. WARSAW

Upset in Water. James Bantam, of Warsaw, had troubles of his own Monday afternoon. He had taken his daughter, Mania, to school and while driving through along the road in Bethlehem township, which was partly submerged in water, the buggy upset. He managed to get it right side up again and reached home in safety though he did not relish the experience.

New Hotel. Dr. Wright's new hotel at Warsaw is rapidly nearing completion. Monday he turned on the hot water for the first time and enjoyed the new heat. The hotel is heated by a private hot water system. The water is heated in the basement and pumped up into the hotel.

May Mean a Suit Against City

Wm. Clary the florist who owns property at the corner of South Tenth and Vine streets is at loggerheads with the city council and the board of public service and litigation may follow. Council ordered that he put down a sidewalk in front of his property, which has a frontage of 300 feet. Mr. Clary says he wanted to put down a cement but when council ordered him it was late in the fall and the good weather had passed. The board of public service laid a foundation he says but left the sidewalk torn up and he finally laid a brick walk on the foundation. He was told that he would have to pay for the work done by the board of public service but declares he won't do it. He called at the county treasurer's office Tuesday to find out if anything had been assessed against his property for laying the sidewalk and learned that thus far no special levy has been made. He was told to present the matter to the city council.

Peace Bonds All Around

Tom Potter was brought before Mayor Smith Tuesday afternoon and placed under a peace bond of $100. Two junk dealers, Lindenbaum and Huffman, claim that they are afraid of Tom. They are Italians and Tom evidently has no use for them although he is ordinarily a peaceful and law abiding citizen. He got over with the junk dealers however by having both of them placed under peace bonds and as he did not have to employ a lawyer he was not greatly inconvenienced.

Viv Fagin Admits Guilt

Cincinnati, Jan. 22.—Vivian Fagin, former U. S. Marshal, pleaded guilty today to the charge of intimidating election officers and the court took the matter under advisement before determining the penalty.

M. P. Revival. The sermon at the M. P. church Monday evening was based upon the parable of the talents and made a deep impression upon the large congregation. The pastor dealt with a vital subject and presented it in a forcible and logical manner. Services

Barker's Bunco Case.
Barker, our famous polo player, thought he had been bunced by some gold brick dealers Monday morning when he went after his suit case which contained his polo uniform. He had left it at the cigar store, and some of his friends placed three heavy paving bricks in it. He could hardly carry it to the rink and called Mr. Fuhr to help him. He was bunced, all right, and is now laying low to find out who did it.

Sweet Revenge at Last on Mt. Vernon Players

The polo game with the professional Mt. Vernon team Monday night, was by far the fastest exhibition of polo ever given the local fans.

And the revenge of the local team was sweet, when the game resulted in a score of 4 to 1 for Coshocton, with not one bad decision by Referee Boyd.

Boyd even gave them the advantage of one goal, which Thompson drove through the side of the cage. The Mt. Vernon players did not see the ball at all, and skated to the opposite end of the hall to resume play. Driftmeyer looked at Thompson and started away, then looked again, as if he was some famous curiosity, after having driven the goal. Boyd, just to show that he was "square" and that the Mt. Vernon players could not deny being treated white, called the team back to their goal, and resumed play not counting the goal. Boyd also called a foul on Barker near the end of the game, when he was roughing with McCarthy. One was as much to blame as the other, but another foul would have taken Mt. Vernon's only goal away. That was too much for Boyd. He would not do such an ignoble act, and called a foul on Barker.

The game was full of the Greatest Excitement from beginning of each period to the end, the players never abating their speed for a moment. The agony of the crowd came to witness the game, expecting to see Coshocton beaten, and perhaps shut out. How they did cheer when Coshocton shot the visitors out until the last period was half over!

Referee Boyd had some trouble in starting the game, as the Mt. Vernon rush, McCarthy would strike out for the ball before Boyd blew the whistle. McCarthy struck the ball twice and the second time he did it, Boyd called a foul on him. Finally started Thompson won the first rush. The ball was sent back and forward across the floor just one minute, and Barker

Caged the First Goal.

Then after one minute and fifty-five seconds, Smythe passed the ball to Thompson who drove the pellet straight for the cage making the second goal. The remainder of the period was fast and furious both teams seeming to be about evenly matched. No more goals were shot, and the period ended 2 to 0 for Coshocton.

Thompson also won the first rush in the second period, and passed the ball to Barker going toward the Mt. Vernon cage. Barker quickly passed it to Thompson, who drove the third goal in just 20 seconds. Five minutes of rapid driving and quick stopping passed, before another goal was made. Then Pope secured the ball from a Mt. Vernon man, passed it to Smythe, who in turn passed it to Thompson.

His Drive Was True,

and the ball nestled snugly in the net making the fourth one for Coshocton, while the visitors had not even a look-in. Play resumed, McCarthy won the rush, and Thompson tripped and fell to the floor. He bruised his elbow badly, but in a few seconds returned to the game. During the next few minutes of play, the Mt. Vernon rushers had a number of chances, but it seemed to be impossible for them, to drive the ball to the right spot to enter the cage. Goal tender Reed was every where, and it was impossible to get the ball past him. At one when the play was all around the Coshocton cage, Reed threw the mask from his face to enable him to see the ball better. It was dangerous, but it probably saved a goal. Just before the period ended, Ralph McCarthy put the ball in the cage, but luckily for Coshocton, it fell back to the floor.

Critical Point

McCarthy won the first rush in the third period, but after two minutes and 53 seconds, Thompson drove the goal through the side of the Mt. Vernon cage. It did not count. The Mt. Vernon boys tried to shoot them through the air into the Coshocton cage, but shot too high. The ball went over the wire at the end of the hall several times in 4 minutes and 48 seconds of play, McCarthy placed the ball in the cage, making

First Goal for Mt. Vernon.

It also proved to be the only one. A second foul was called on Mt. Vernon for rough playing, and in a few minutes two was also called on Barker for the same offense. The

WINS CASE

This afternoon the circuit court handed down a decision in the case of Richard Clark, treasurer vs Wm. R. Gault, executor of the estate of R. E. Finlay which reverses the decision of the common pleas court. The lower court held that the value of certain bonds was a taxable asset, the circuit court reverses that decision and holds that it is not taxable.

Cambridge For Baseball.

The Cambridge base ball team met Sunday in the office of the Guernsey Times, and talked over the prospects for this season. A letter from Charles L. Speck, manager of the P. H. A. C. club was read, and very enthusiastically received. Mr. Speck spoke of Pud Carr very complimentary. "As to Mr. Carr, I can recommend him as a thorough base ball man, well posted in all points of the game and he can be depended on at all times as a hard worker and if there is any chance of making a league of this kind a success he is the man who will do it. Yours truly, Chas. L. Speck, Mgr. P. H. A. C. Base Ball Club"

How from Newark.

Manager McClure of the high school basketball team received word from Coshocton Monday, saying that they could not play the scheduled game here Wednesday night. The manager immediately made arrangements with Doane Academy of Traville, to fill the date. The Coshocton game would have been interesting as Newark has played them twice in the games during the past two years.—Newark Advocate.

Bowling Notes.

The high scores rolled at the Parkview alleys Monday evening are as follows: Raymond Rodgers 51, 50; Edward Arnold 53; William Smith 53; William Bachman 52, 58; Walter Tucker 50; Floyd Smith 54.

The only high scores rolled in Duck Pins were 85 and 86 by Floyd Smith. Manager Edward Arnold is trying to arrange some match games in Duck Pins to be rolled soon.

BIG AUTO GARAGE IS A GO

New Distillery to be Built
Old One For Automobiles

Coshocton is to have a big and modern automobile garage with machines for rent as well as care-taking of private cars. It is to be installed in the old building of the Coshocton Distilling Co. near city hall.

Messrs. Siegrist and Murray will have work begun tearing out the machinery from the building, next week.
Mr. Murray is now out of the city negotiating with parties who will put in a sales room in connection with an up to date automobile repair shop, employing expert automobile repair men in order to take care of tourists and make Coshocton headquarters for touring parties as the scarcity of good automobile repair shops makes it very inconvenient for touring parties.

They will also have from three to five touring cars to hire out to the public by the day or hour.

The Coshocton Distilling Co. will shut down their old plant, and build a new distillery, increasing their output five times its present capacity, owing to the great demand for their goods.

Their new building, probably opposite the present plant, will be built of brick 40x85, three stories, and will be equipped with new machinery throughout, when completed will be one of the most complete plants in the state.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment.
Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for
